

Community Brief

Winter 2024

Welcome to the Winter edition of LJ Hooker Strata's Community Brief. There are many facets of body corporate ownership and living and we hope to provide you with information to explain the responsibilities of the Managing Agent, Owners Corporation and the Executive Committee, as well as clear delineation between A and B class developments and assist with understanding of issues that arise from time to time. We welcome your feedback and suggestions for future topics. Let's kick off with some housekeeping surrounding condensation.

Insurance Disclosure Best Practice

We at LJ Hooker Strata wish to reaffirm our unwavering commitment to ethical conduct, transparency, and prioritising your best interests. We understand the importance of trust in our relationship, and we are dedicated to maintaining the highest standards in our industry.

LJ Hooker Strata strictly adheres to the Best Practice guidelines set forth by Strata Community Association (SCA). Our principles are grounded in:

- Building Understanding: Ensuring that strata committees comprehend their insurance choices, options, and fee breakdowns.
- Positive Consumer Outcomes: Enhancing relationships, conversations, understanding, and outcomes for our clients.
- Transparency and Choice: Elevating the transparency, choice, and communication in strata insurance.
- Timely Communication: Providing clear and timely communication, with a minimum of three touch points during the insurance placement process.
- Concise Information: Offering clear, straightforward information about the roles and responsibilities of all parties involved in the strata insurance process.
- Remuneration Disclosure: Offering detailed information on remuneration, including who is paid and why, presented with quotes, invoices, and at AGMs.

These principles ensure that you, our valued clients, receive accurate, timely, and transparent information to make informed decisions about your strata insurance.

We appreciate your trust in LJ Hooker Strata and are committed to demonstrating our dedication to ethical practices and transparency every day. Should you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to reach out.

Best practice guide attached for your perusal.

'A' Class and 'B' Class units

'A' Class: unit plans are typically apartment complexes or buildings with units on top of other units. Essentially the unit owner owns inside the unit to halfway through the boundary walls, ceiling and floors, but not the main structure of the building. The owners corporation is responsible for maintaining the outside of the building and surrounding area to the boundary of the units plan – including corridors, lifts, gardens, driveways, garage entry doors, parking areas (known as common property).

'B' Class: unit plans are where the individual unit owner owns the main structure of their building – inside and out – and often owns their own piece of land within their lot boundary, eg a courtyard. Townhouses are usually 'B' Class units. The owners corporation has maintenance requirements for common property but not for individual units, unless this has been authorised by a special resolution at a general meeting of the owners corporation.

A simple way to think of a 'B' Class unit and owner responsibility for maintenance and repairs, is the same as if the unit was a free-standing house. There can still be requirements for the external appearance of 'B' Class units that are agreed by the owners corporation, which is of course not the case with a free-standing house.

What is an owner's corporation and an executive committee?

The owners corporation is made up of the owners in a units plan. Once an owner purchases a unit they are automatically a member of the corporation.

The executive committee is elected by the owners at the Annual General Meeting to run the day-to-day business of the owners corporation. For new owners corporations (units plans), until the first annual general meeting of the owners corporation, all members of the corporation (owners) comprise the executive committee.

What does an owner's corporation do?

- Controls, manages and administers the common property
- Establishes funds for management and maintenance of the common property, including a 10 year Sinking Fund Plan for future repairs and capital maintenance
- Sets owners corporation contributions (levies) each year based on agreed budgets
- Enforces the rules of the owners corporation
- Ensures the insurance obligations prescribed in the Unit Titles (Management) Act 2011 are met
- Maintains the common property defined parts, building(s) and balconies in all units (for A Class)
- Holds annual and other general meetings of owners
- Keeps minutes of meetings and maintains financial records and prepares accounts for presentation to owners
- Maintains the corporate register including details of ownership and occupancy of units, including the address for service of unit owners
- Provides, on request, a copy of the unit title certificate and copy of the records of the corporation to a unit owner or other eligible person who has an interest in a unit or common property on request
- Employs a strata manager (if required and agreed)

What are the obligations of the executive committee?

The executive committee exercises the functions of the owners corporation including matters relating to the:

- Common property
- Financial affairs of the owners corporation
- Approval of annual financial statements and budgets for presentation to the members at each general meeting, with assistance from the strata manager
- Supervision of the strata manager (if applicable)

Key roles of office holders

While the roles of the office holders may look daunting, in practice many of the day-to-day functions are delegated to the strata manager. However the executive committee is responsible for ensuring that the functions are undertaken.

The chairperson

- Chairs meetings of the owners corporation and executive committee
- Sets the agenda for general and executive committee meetings in consultation with the secretary and the strata manager

The secretary (on behalf of the owners corporation)

- Gives notice of meetings of the executive committee and general meetings
- Prepares and sends minutes of executive committee meetings to all owners
- Prepares and sends members of the owners corporation minutes of general meetings
- Keeps records of the owners corporation (other than financial records)
- Gives notices required under legislation.
- Gives certificates required under legislation
- Prepares and answers correspondence

The treasurer (on behalf of the owners corporation)

- Gives each unit owner a determination of the general fund and sinking fund contributions
- Pays all amounts the corporation receives into the corporation's account
- Acknowledges receipt of, and accounts for, amounts paid to the corporation
- Pays amounts the corporation spends from the corporation's account as authorized by the executive committee

The treasurer (on behalf of the executive committee)

- Keeps the financial records
- Provides financial reports which monitor the performance of the owners corporation
- Prepares and certifies the annual financial statements

The executive committee must keep:

- Minutes of its proceedings and meetings including a record of all resolutions made
- A copy of any court order given to the owners corporation
- Any authorisation by the Environment, Planning and Sustainable Development Directorate given to the owners corporation
- Proper records and accounts in relation to the owners corporation's assets and liabilities and all amounts received and paid by the owners corporation
- Records for a minimum of seven years

Executive committee code of conduct

Joining an executive committee carries with it a lot of responsibility. In agreeing to give up free time to fulfil a voluntary role and becoming involved in the day to day operations of the owners corporation and community, many may find the experience both rewarding and at times challenging.

At times executive committee members may not see eye to eye with fellow committee members on certain issues. The obligation first and foremost is to work for the benefit of the owners corporation which has appointed the executive committee members. Executive committee members must act together in the best interests of the owners corporation when carrying out the executive committee's functions.

If a committee member carries out functions honestly and without recklessness, the Unit Titles Management Act protects individuals from civil liability. Members of an executive committee are bound by a code of conduct. They must also have a commitment to acquiring an understanding of the Unit Titles Management Act relevant to their role and have a good understanding of the code of conduct.

Members of an executive committee must:

- Act honestly and fairly and with reasonable care and diligence
- Act in the best interests of the owners corporation, unless it is unlawful to do so
- Take reasonable steps to ensure that members comply with the Unit Titles Management Act, including the code of conduct
- Disclose any conflict of interest before the committee
- Not use their position as a member to gain, directly or indirectly, an advantage personally or for someone else
- Not exert undue influence on the owner of a unit in the units plan

Condensation

Condensation is a common occurrence in unit plans, especially in the winter months. Condensation occurs when the inside air temperature is higher than the outside air temperature. Naturally a warm environment encompasses humidity. When the humidity makes contact with a cold surface of varying temperature it will turn into water droplets or condensation.

Though it is not impossible to prevent condensation from occurring in a unit the following simple techniques can help reduce condensation building up:

- Turn on the exhaust fan, especially when showering, cooking or using a clothes dryer.
- Run exhaust fans after these activities to maximise extraction of the humid air.
- If weather permits, open windows and doors to improve ventilation and allow natural air circulation.
- Use the 'dehumidify' setting on your air conditioning system if you have it.

Implementation

For SCA members to adapt to the evolving strata insurance market and respond to government and regulator expectations for consumer protections, trust and confidence, there is a need to improve strata committee understanding of the fees, charges and overall amounts totalled for strata insurance policies.

This has been well established by SCA through extensive research and advocacy activities, and independently, but in parallel, by peak broker body NIBA, who are also implementing their own disclosure requirements for their members.

There are several compelling reasons to improve best practice in relation to disclosure of strata insurance, including:

- To elevate SCA members in the eyes of strata committees and consumers
- To eliminate some of the poor insurance practices and bad actors who undermine confidence
- To improve relationships, conversations, understanding and outcomes relating to insurance between strata managers, committees and consumers.

To accomplish this, there are three (3) major areas for strata managers to address as they quote and invoice for insurance to improve understanding and transparency:

1. Disclose - the disclosure of the eight (8) financial items of each strata insurance placement.
2. Document – what to document and how to document it, including templates.
3. Communicate – how and when to communicate with all parties involved.

A 3-Step Guide

Step 1 - Disclose

Step 2 - Document

Step 3 - Communicate

Step 1 – Disclose

The eight (8) financial items

SCA recommends that as best practice, the following eight (8) items are disclosed in as simple and transparent fashion as possible, as part of the strata insurance quotation and invoicing processes:¹

1. Base premium
2. ESL or FSL (Emergency Services Levy, or Fire Services Levy) dependent on jurisdiction
3. Stamp duty
4. Underwriting agency fee
5. Broker fee
6. GST
7. Commission
8. Allocation of strata insurance remuneration.

The above terminology can be understood by the following table

#	Financial Item	Definition
1.	Base premium	The premium quoted by the underwriter to the broker or strata manager (intermediary). The base premium may include commission (if applicable). The base premium may be disclosed further and split as a base premium gross , which includes commission, or a base premium net , which does not include commission (optional).
2.	ESL or FSL (Emergency Services Levy, or Fire Services Levy, if applicable)	The amount added to a quotation or bill for strata insurance mandated by the local jurisdiction. If other mandatory government charges or fees are included in the billing jurisdiction, use this line to enter the amount and type of fee.
3.	Stamp duty	A duty charged by all jurisdictional (state or territory) governments on all strata insurance policies (except for the Australian Capital Territory [ACT]).
4.	Underwriting agency fee	A fee charged by the underwriting agency to carry out work related to the placement of the strata insurance policy.
5.	Broker fee	An amount added by the broker to the invoice received from the underwriter. Included in the broker's invoice to the strata committee ² as a customer.
6.	GST	Goods and Services Tax (an Australian/Federal Government tax) is charged on all components of the premium and other insurance charges excluding Stamp Duty.
7.	Commission	The amount, if applicable, included within the base premium (in most cases) that is to be paid or credited by the underwriter to the broker or strata manager.
8.	Allocation of strata insurance remuneration	Details the sharing arrangement between strata manager and broker of total fees and/or commissions. Details each party's portion, expressed as a percentage and/or a total dollar value figure.

¹ The eight (8) financial items disclosure and this section is largely based on Independent Review of Strata Insurance Practices, Phase 1 – Disclosure, John Trowbridge, 2022.

² 'Strata committee' is a catch-all term to refer to an Owners Corporation, Body Corporate, Strata Company or Community Corporation, dependent on the reader's jurisdiction. A full glossary of terms can be found at the end of the document.

Step 1 - Disclose

Step 2 - Document

Step 3 - Communicate

Step 2 – Document

The overarching goals for Step 2 – Document are:

- The strata committee (consumer) can easily compare last year's quotations or invoice to this year's quotations and invoice.
- Each of the eight (8) financial items are clearly broken out separately and described in a sequential and easy to follow manner in the quotation or invoice.
- To provide templates that can be followed exactly by strata managers, or can be used as a resource to include the eight (8) financial items within existing quotation and invoicing systems.
- The option to include additional information such as the building sum insured value, if it makes sense to do so at this time (optional).

What is strata insurance remuneration? Strata insurance remuneration is the total value of the remuneration paid to the parties involved in the process of insuring a strata building.
Who is paid strata insurance remuneration? The two most common parties who receive remuneration will be the strata manager and the insurance broker, however who receives remuneration is based on the arrangement the strata committee chooses. Some strata communities choose to take out insurance directly with insurers, some contact an independent broker to aid their insurance choice, and many use a strata manager who works closely with one or more insurance brokers.

⁴ In some cases, financial information for last year will not have been obtained, either due to making a quote for the first time, or information unavailable. Last year should be endeavoured to be achieved on quotations and invoices, however in these circumstances cannot be included.

⁵ Based on the Templates for Financial Disclosures, P29, Trowbridge, John. (2022) Independent Review of Strata Insurance Practices – Phase 1. Accessed at <https://johnntrowbridge.com.au/strata-insurance/phase-1/>

Do strata communities have choice about remuneration models? Yes. Strata communities have the choice of several remuneration models, and it is advisable if they wish to alter their current remuneration model to discuss it with their strata manager to fully understand their personal circumstances. Are all parties who are remunerated as part of the insurance process listed in this section? Yes. No matter which remuneration model is chosen, all parties who are involved in the insurance process and will usually receive remuneration are listed below, along with the sum total dollar value they received over the stated period. If they have any conflicts of interest they must include them below too. What does the remuneration listed below pay for? Strata managers undertake 47 unique services in relation to strata insurance to their clients, including, but not limited to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Quotation • Procurement • Placement and renewal • Claims management • Insurance record keeping • Correspondence • Negotiation and liaison • General advice based on insurance knowledge The knowledge and experience the strata manager holds of the insurance landscape as well as the building is an asset to the strata committee and the policy outcome and administration. Increased legislative and regulatory requirements, along with buildings which are often more complex mean expertise is incredibly valuable in the strata insurance space relative to positive outcomes. Insurance brokers engaged in strata insurance provide specialist financial advice during each phase of the insurance process, working closely with the strata manager when there is a strata manager/broker arrangement in place. Brokers can also provide general and personal advice. Brokers work to understand the unique aspects of the building being insured and provide a tailored quote based on the building's particular set of circumstances.

Different models of strata insurance placement may require altering the above invoice template, such as:

1. Altering for net premiums
2. Quotations
3. Direct placement of insurance
4. Fee-for-service models

The table below gives guidance for how to still achieve best practice disclosure in these scenarios, by altering the template.

#	Altered Template Usage	Procedure to follow
1.	Altering for net premiums	When altering this template for net premiums, a '$0 commission' should be noted in Item 1 and in the description of Item 1, and then noted within Items 7 and 8 with a detailed break out of all fees relating to the transaction for both the broker and the strata manager. Any impacts made on GST, Stamp Duty or other items due to the premium altering should be calculated and included.
2.	Quotations	This template can be used for quotations, by simply adding columns to the right of the template to capture additional quotations for an easy comparison of multiple quotes, including last year and then each quote from this year.
3.	Direct placement of insurance	When insurance is being placed directly to the underwriter without the use of a broker, please follow the steps for Altered Use 1. This can also be achieved by removing any broker related items in the invoice. If this is the case, it will be up to the underwriter or the strata manager to complete this step. If the underwriter's documents sufficiently disclose the recommendations in this guide, it may be used for disclosure if all parties agree.
4.	Fee-for-service models	Fee-for-service models should include references to fees that have been charged, or will be charged, within Item 8, and where appropriate, follow the above altered usages if items are removed. Where appropriate, a schedule of fees should be provided for upcoming fees. Alterations should be made if the premium structure is altered as a result of being a fee-for-service transaction.

Step 1 - Disclose

Step 2 - Document

Step 3 - Communicate

Step 3 – Communicate

Step 3 – Communicate is based around the following actions:

- Communicate to strata committee at time of quotation
- Communicate to strata committee once the policy has been renewed.
- Disclose at the Annual General Meeting (AGM).

Key considerations during Step 3 – Communicate

#	Communication	Action
1.	Collaboration	Brokers, strata managers and underwriters (dependent on insurance services model used) should work together at each point of contact and ensure communication with the strata committee has occurred.
2.	Broker and strata manager relationship	If the strata manager works with, or is aligned with the broker, the broker and strata manager need to work together to ensure that the minimum best practice disclosures are met in the broker's paperwork.
3.	Direct placement of insurance	If the strata manager acts as a representative of the insurer without a broker, no matter what service model, the strata manager needs to take on disclosure responsibility. Strata managers should work closely with underwriters to obtain the relevant information. SCA will support members to achieve this through education and additional templates if required.
4.	Best Practice Disclosure Template vs Broker or Underwriter Paperwork	Ideally the disclosure requirements and information are met in a way that is simple and easy to follow, similarly to the provided template and information in this best practice disclosure guide, however this does not have to be exactly the same, as long as the requirements are met.
5.	Timelines	All efforts should be made to allow strata committees 30 days to act following a quotation. All information that is required to be disclosed should be provided on appointment, and then at least once annually, which should be triggered by quotation and invoicing procedures.
6.	Disclosure responsibility	The burden of responsibility is shared between all parties to the placement of insurance, however the strata manager holds ultimate responsibility under this best practice to disclose the above information. If all aspects of disclosure are not present, the strata manager should strive to prepare paperwork that achieves this goal. This should be undertaken with the broker or underwriter as closely as possible to ensure accuracy and information consistency.
7.	Broker and strata manager relationship (if applicable) – key takeaways	It is critical for disclosure that strata managers align with a broker who is willing to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Disclose each of the eight (8) financial items • Work to make their paperwork and quotations easy to understand and meeting the disclosure guidelines. • Work to timelines suitable to disclosure at quotation and at time of invoicing.

Disclosure Requirements and Strata Insurance

Disclosure requirements – current by jurisdiction (irrespective of SCA membership)

This documentation and level of disclosure will mean you are operating in line with SCA best practice in relation to insurance disclosures, but what are your current arrangements in the jurisdiction you practice within?

Take a look below to see what the regulatory requirements are in your jurisdiction.

In most cases, disclosure is already required, and the best practice laid out in this document either makes that disclosure more easily accessible, or adds additional information, or both.

The Deakin University report⁶ outlined each jurisdiction's requirements and the applicable legislation in the matrix supplied below.

Disclosure requirements and the SCA Code of Conduct

- Under the SCA Code of Conduct, which establishes the principles that govern the conduct of SCA Members in the context of the strata environment, it states that all strata managers who recommend a strata services provider to a client must:
 - disclose in writing to the Client any rebate, discount, or commission as required; and
 - disclose in writing to the Client any potential Conflict of Interest required to be disclosed; and
 - must not accept, directly or indirectly, any undisclosed commission from any person for the recommendation.

Disclosure requirements and SCA's Strata Management Practice Standard (SMPS)

In some jurisdictions, some strata management firms are signing up to, and completing SCA's Strata Management Practice Standard (SMPS).

The below section is a relevant requirement of the SMPS in relation to disclosure.

Following the best practice information and templates above will ensure strata managers who have signed up to and completed the SMPS are acting within their requirements.

Excerpt from the SMPS below.

"3. Strata Community Management

3.1. Strata Management Agreement

The Business must complete in writing a Strata Management Agreement when a strata community wishes to engage a strata management business.

3.2. Agreement Terms

The Strata Management Agreement must clearly set out all of the contract terms.

3.2.3. Disclosures

The Strata Management Agreement must clearly set out all commissions or remuneration payable for insurance policies or other contract services, and any other conflicts of interest."

Strata Insurance and Its Unique Characteristics

Background & Introduction

The strata insurance market has been undergoing significant changes in recent years. Two key areas impacting SCA members and employees the most have been the developing ‘Availability & Affordability Crisis’ and changes in the “Strata Insurance Supply Chain” reflecting the shift of most member practices now partnering with specialist strata insurance brokers to deliver policies and claim services to their customers.

SCANSIT (“SCA National Strata Insurance Taskforce”) was established in 2020 to respond to the issues being raised to government bodies by consumer groups and other interested parties around the causes and potential solutions to the emerging affordability and availability impacts on strata insurance.

The goal of this best practice guide is to improve disclosure and transparency around every aspect of strata insurance and to support a consistent message around the role of a strata manager in relation to strata insurance services.

The critical role and value of strata managers

An aspect of strata insurance that has sometimes received less attention is properly describing the critical work that strata managers undertake through the supply chain and the insurance lifecycle.

The work undertaken and the value provided establishes a baseline and the requirement that strata managers be remunerated as an integral part of the strata insurance supply and services processes.

Two industry commissioned reports have delved into strata insurance in great detail:

- A data-driven, holistic understanding of strata insurance in Australia and New Zealand, by Nicole Johnston at Deakin University (commissioned by SCA, referred to as ‘The Deakin Report’).
- Independent Review of Strata Insurance Practices – Phase 1, by John Trowbridge (commissioned by Steadfast, referred to as ‘The Trowbridge Report – Phase 1’).

There are several shared themes that necessitated the reports being commissioned and carried out by well-respected, independent authors, namely:

- Increasing strata insurance premiums in a ‘hardening’ market.
- Strata insurance affordability and availability issues (severe in some markets such as Northern Australia).
- A lack of information and general understanding of the strata insurance supply chain, including practices, operation and roles.
- A need for data and evidence to properly inform government and industry stakeholders and inquiries, as well as regulators, in relation to key strata insurance issues.

Each of these two reports makes recommendations specifically related to disclosure and transparency.

SCA has taken these recommendations very seriously, and they form the basis of our recommendations for strata insurance disclosure practices in this guide.

Evolving strata insurance service models

Although there are industry norms that have developed around what type of arrangements are determined between brokers and strata managers and whether models include commissions or operate solely on a fee-for-service basis, SCA is not prescriptive in recommending one approach over another.

SCA, through this guide, is pursuing a scenario where no matter what service model an SCA member chooses to engage in with their strata committee, they are able to transparently and easily describe its features and costs in a manner that is consistent across the whole strata industry.

By implementing templates and prescribed disclosure requirements of the eight (8) financial items, our industry will establish a standard for client communication, as well as disclosure of practices and scopes of service, ensuring that consumers will have the tools at their disposal to make an informed decision.

In almost all cases where strata insurance policies are taken out, the strata committee⁷ (referred to as an Owners Corporation, Body Corporate, Strata Company or Community Corporation dependent on jurisdiction) is the insured party.

Strata insurance policies broadly take into account and provide insurance for two elements:

- Providing insurance to the buildings and common property of the scheme.
- Providing insurance to the governing entity (the strata committee) to protect staff, guests and committee members.

Strata insurance is considered a complex product, due to several factors which distinguish it from insurance for single, or freestanding dwellings, and some other consumer insurance products such as vehicle insurance. Some of these factors that lead to increased complexity are:

- The often large size and resultant replacement costs of the strata building or property being insured.
- The complexity of inclusions in strata buildings or properties including lifts, pools, recreation areas, car parks and other common area structures.
- Increased complexity for valuations for sums insured.
- The critical nature of construction materials e.g. cladding, asbestos and the prevalence of major building defects.
- The democratic voting structures of strata committees and revolving membership of volunteers.
- The co-ownership model of each owning both an individually titled property (their lot) and a share in the common property which creates joint and several liability risks and responsibilities.
- The variation in the insurance knowledge levels of strata committee members.
- A highly regulated, complex legislative and regulatory environment that varies by jurisdiction and contains mandatory insurance requirements.
- The diversity of strata-titled and community-titled schemes from apartments and townhouses, to mixed-used residential and commercial to horizontal land subdivisions and many others.
- The existence of 'common areas' that require insurance cover for liability.

⁷ 'Strata committee' is a catch-all term to refer to an Owners Corporation, Body Corporate, Strata Company or Community Corporation, dependent on the reader's jurisdiction. A full glossary of terms can be found at the end of the document.

Research Reports That Have Informed This Best Practice Guide

In 2021, SCA commissioned Deakin University to undertake an analysis of several aspects of the strata insurance market, one of which was to analyse the role and functions of strata managers in the 'strata insurance supply chain.'

The report made several findings and conclusions about strata managers and their role in the supply chain, the two most relevant of which were:⁸

The report identified some 47 strata insurance services that are regularly provided by strata managers to their OC (strata committee) clients. These services divide across: Quotation, procurement, placement and renewal; insurance valuation; insurance claims; insurance record keeping; insurance advice; insurance negotiation and liaison; and insurance finance.

Summarising strata manager value, the report identified three major values (or value pillars) that strata managers provide:

1. They are the legislated agents of the OC (strata committee) and are bound to act in their best interests
2. They are the custodians of records
3. They are a knowledge bank of the scheme and related laws.

From the findings and information contained in the report, SCA concluded that:

- Strata managers provide value to the owners corporations and bodies corporate they represent by applying specialist knowledge in a complex legislative and regulatory environment.
- Strata insurance is complex and strata committees need a trusted person to navigate them to their best outcome.
- Strata managers understand, interact with and add value to a complex strata insurance supply chain and work closely with brokers, insurers and underwriters.

It is important to note that strata managers are also often the first responders in the event of a claim and arranging access to the property or lots for assessment or repairs.

The findings underlined the value of the strata manager and the duties they perform that form the basis of their remuneration.

The Deakin Report recommendations:⁹

The report recommended that strata managers need to better explain the breadth and depth of services they provide, as well as improving disclosure and transparency so consumers fully understand the products they are taking out. The three recommendations were:

1. To improve the distinction between what services are undertaken by the manager and what insurance services are, or should be, undertaken by the insurance broker.
2. To improve the description of the insurance-related services provided by managers in their management agreements.
3. To communicate in a much more transparent manner with their clients.

The Trowbridge Phase 1 Report recommendations:¹⁰

Recommendation 1: Financial disclosures in the form of broker quotations and invoices be prepared by reference to standard templates containing a minimum set of eight items with standard definitions.

Recommendation 2: Brokers and strata managers arrange to ensure timely transmission of quotations and invoices to the strata committee during the annual insurance renewal process.

Recommendation 3: Broker presentations of quotations be accompanied by a statement of scope of services by strata manager and broker and also by a full explanation of commercial relationships between broker and strata manager (noting that some are beneficial to all parties, in the interests of the owners, and others raise questions).

Recommendation 4: SCA and NIBA consider the recommendations in detail and give effect to decisions they take on a self-regulatory basis by establishing guidance notes or practice standards for their respective members.
